

Essential Element 5: Quiz

Essential Element 5: Quiz

1. If a proposed study has no direct benefit to the individual study participant:
 - The study should not be conducted.
 - The risks must be reasonable and balanced by the benefit to society and the knowledge to be gained.
 - The study participant must receive a significant payment for participation to compensate for the risk.
2. The interests of science and society should take precedence over considerations for the well-being of the study participants.
 - True
 - False
3. Potential benefits to individual study participants may include:
(Check all that apply.)
 - Medical care at higher costs
 - More frequent monitoring of participants' disease or condition
 - Positive response to study intervention
 - Possibility of life-style modifications

Submit

Click here to return to the course home screen